

Police Blotter

Glenwood Post: Oct 18, 1902

Peter H. Weaver, of Denver, last Monday drove across the State bridge at a rate of speed that made Marshal Weidenhammer dizzy as he looked on from Seventh street. When Weaver drove up in front of the Hotel Glenwood our marshal took him in tow and made him acquainted with Judge Hedden who thought ten and costs just about right. After settling up, Peter was admonished to go in peace and sin no more. It is certain that he will not be quite so speedy hereafter when crossing bridges.
